Accepted Joint Proposal

All he Could Get From Congress, Truman Comments On Military Program

WASHINGTON, April 29—(AP)—President Truman said today he accepted proposals to combine a temporary draft and a universal training program because it was all he could get out of Congress.

The president told a news conference the idea of blending the draft and universal training was an acceptable compromise.

Then he added that it was because it was all he could get. It was, he said, a step in the right direction.

Mr. Truman asked Congress for a temporary revival of the draft to expand the armed forces now. He also asked a universal training program under which all physically fit 18 year olds would be trained as a reserve.

Substitute Plan

But when Congress was cool to that, military men came up last Tuesday with a substitute plan which virtually junked the universal training idea.

The substitute, outlined to the Senate Armed Services committee, proposed:

A draft of 161,000 youths in the 18½-19½ age bracket for a year of training with the regular services. These boys could not be sent overseas.

A draft of 190,000 men in the 19½-25 age bracket for two years service in the armed forces.

House Opposition

The House Armed Services committee has indicated opposition to this proposal. Chairman Andrews (R-NY) predicted any effort to combine the draft and UMT would wind up in defeat of both.

Secretary of Defense Forrestal talked over the situation with Mr. Truman yesterday. The president's news conference remarks presumably indicate a decision to stick with the idea of a combined draft-trainee program for the time being at least.

Royal Testifies

Testifying on Capitol Hill today, Secretary Royall said the army needs 837,000 troops instead of the 790,000 called for in the administration's "compromise" program. The Army's present force is about 540,000.

The Army secretary testified before the Senate Appropriations committee. He said $37,000 is a minimum "based upon present world conditions." He also said the army needs—but is not asking—an extra $2,100,000 annually during the next year if it is to be prepared "to deal with the initial phases of a war."

Elks Honor to Joseph W. Reid

Joe W. Reid, who for more than 25 years has been secretary of the Sedalia Lodge No. 125 B.P.O. Elks, was honored for his services given the lodge by being voted a "Life Membership," at the regular meeting of the Elks, Wednesday night at the Elks Home, Fourth street and Kentucky avenue. Two newly elected officers of the lodge were also installed, B. A. Fischer, treasurer, and Hugo M. Sparn, trustee.

It was pointed out during the meeting that when Reid took over the duties of secretary the lodge was in debt by $27,000, and since that time the indebtedness has been paid off and the Elks now have in bonds and other securities more than $20,000.

The newly elected officer Fischer succeeds Clarence Brill and Sparn succeeds James F. Downs, both recently resigned.

Roy Snyder, president of the Elks Home Association, announced the revival of the association and its functions.

Accidents Take the Lives of Two Persons

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., April 29.—(AP)—Injuries received in accidents here have taken the lives of two persons.

Juanita Sybolt, two-year-old, died last night in Burge hospital as the result of burns received last Sunday when she tipped over a pot of scalding food at the Sybolt home on Route 4.

In another accident, Thomas Robert Howser, 32-year-old horse trainer, died last night of a skull fracture. Howser was riding a newly broken horse when the animal reared and fell backwards, pinning him underneath.

Committee Approves Sawyer

WASHINGTON, April 29—(AP)—The Senate Commerce committee approved today the nomination of Charles Sawyer, Cincinnati Democrat, to be secretary of commerce. The nomination now goes to the Senate for action.

Sawyer, a former ambassador to Belgium, was named by President Truman to succeed W. Averell Harriman, who has resigned to become roving ambassador to the countries being aided by the European recovery program.

Plans Change in Rail Strike

At a Washington conference, Chairman Frank P. Douglas, right, of the National Mediation Board, announced new negotiations between unions and railroads had been reached in an effort to head off a nationwide railroad strike. Later, a spokesman for two of the unions, said that because of a "change in plans" no date for the strike will be made now. With Douglas are other members of the board, John Thad Scott, Jr., of Houston, left, and Francis A. O'Neill, New York City. Douglas is from Oklahoma City. (NEA TELEPHOTO)

Roving Gavel To Sedalia's Kiwanis Club

They in Turn Will Pass it on to Club in Versailles

Ten members of the Jefferson City Kiwanis club delivered to the Sedalia club a traveling gavel at the meeting in Hotel Bothwell Thursday noon.

The gavel, which was presented by R. P. Cummins after a short introductory talk, is a presentation of the lieutenant governor. Each club passes it along to another before the expiration of two weeks. The club having the greatest number of members times the mileage traveled will ultimately come into permanent possession of the gavel.

The Rev. Benjamin L. Schmidt, also of Jefferson City was the principal speaker.

T. H. Yount was program chairman.

New Club Member

A new member of the Sedalia club is Guy T. Bailey, superintendent of the Missouri Pacific schools. Beside her at all times in classrooms and halls was Police Sgt. George J. Noel, an uncle assigned to guard her.

Police hurried a thorough investigation of Miss Jokiel's 165 pupils and the source of the phone calls to the teacher's mother, Mrs. Esther Jokiel, also a teacher.

Volley of Gunfire

As Mrs. Jokiel hung up last night a volley of gunfire broke the silence of the Brooklyn side-street where they live. Police said about 30 shots, some of which struck the house, were fired, probably by a .25 caliber and .32 caliber automatic rifles.

The shots broke windowpanes on the Jokiel front porch and hit homes on either side. Mrs. Jokiel was in the dining room at the time.

Miss Jokiel said, "I can't understand it. Fort Hamilton has the cream of the crop of high school students. The whole thing seems fantastic. Maybe they're picking on me because I live in the neighborhood."

Reason To Fight Fire

SIOUX CITY, Ia., April 29—(AP)—If the firemen who fought a stubborn blaze at a freezer storage plant here looked hungry, maybe there's a reason.

The bin in which the flames caused damage yesterday contained 37,000 fresh hams, property of the strikebound Armour and Company.

Planning Cross Country Trip For President

Party May be Making Search for Running Mate

By the Associated Press
Plans were shaping up today for a cross country speaking tour by President Truman only a month ahead of the Democratic national convention.

Unless developments in Washington or abroad intervene, Mr. Truman is scheduled to open his personal appearance campaign on June 2 in Chicago. There he is to address a Swedish immigration celebration.

Two days later he may visit Omaha where his World War I buddies of the 35th division will hold their annual reunion. From there he is expected to go to the Pacific Northwest before making the commencement address at the University of California on June 12.

Although not openly ticketed as a political junket, the tour's details are being worked out by Democratic national chairman J. Howard McGrath.

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 29—(AP)—It was still anybody's guess today as to what effect Tuesday's presidential write-in vote will have on the Pennsylvania delegation at the Republican National Convention.

Gov. James H. Duff, head of the 73-man delegation, said the balloting will have no effect. But Harold E. Stassen, victor in the popularity contest, insists the Pennsylvania result "may turn out to be a key event in the nomination."

Search for Running Mate

Mr. Truman's search for a running mate could be tied into the transcontinental travels. Gov. Mon Wallgren of Washington has been mentioned as a likely vice presidential choice. He may play host again to Mr. Truman, who visited him in 1945.

Meanwhile, the president's Republican opponents were off on speaking tours of their own.

Harold E. Stassen, the former Minnesota governor who holds the GOP popularity title to date, was in New Jersey to bid for the state's 35 convention votes.

The New Jersey convention state already has been chosen and pointed to the favorite son, Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll. But Stassen had a luncheon date today with the delegates and other leading state Republicans at Trenton. He spoke on foreign affairs at Princeton last night.

The other top contenders, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and Senator Robert A. Taft, who will make their bids for the New Jersey vote next month.

Taft, meanwhile, continued a speaking tour in his home state of Ohio, where he and Stassen will clash again in the May 4 primary. As yet the senator has had no comment on the Pennsylvania popularity contest—in which he placed fifth in a field led by Stassen.

Support in Delaware

However, Taft gained unofficial support in Delaware. A news poll of the nine unpledged GOP convention delegates chosen yesterday showed four favoring Taft. One said he was for house speaker Martin (R-Mass.), one was for Senator Arthur Vandenberg (R-Mich.), another spoke up for Stassen and two were undecided.

Henry A. Wallace, the third party candidate, pressed his campaign on home grounds. He told a Des Moines, Iowa, audience that war threats and the "oil trust" would end farmers' prosperity.

Wallace described as "nonsense" a charge by CIO President Philip Murray at Atlantic City that the "Communist party" is responsible for formation of the third party.

Well Dressed Women Bandits

CAMDEN, N. J., April 29—(AP)—New Jersey state police were alerted today for something new in the way of bandits—a pair of stylishly dressed women.

State police of the Berlin barracks said Mrs. Anna Walker of nearby Kettle Run reported two women drove up to her farm home yesterday and announced they were selling stockings.

After she had invited the pair into the house, Mrs. Walker told police, one of the women said: "I know you love your children and I want your money. Give us your money or we'll harm your children."

Afraid that some harm might befall her own two children and a third child visiting the Walker home, Mrs. Walker told police she obtained $70 from a bedroom and gave it to the two female bandits, who then fled in their car.

Milkmen Who Run on Job May be Fined

ST. LOUIS, April 29—(P)—The Milk Wagon Drivers and Inside Dairy Employees' union (AFL) will decide whether to fine milkmen $25 for running on the job.

"Some of the drivers feel they are being overworked," Patrick J. Burke, secretary-treasurer of Local 603, said today. "Many of them have to vault fences and run around like rabbits to complete their routes."

"Each man's territory on the average has 180 stops. This is a reduction from what it has been but in some cases drivers still have too much to do."

The vote will be taken May 13.

Widow of Late C. E. Messerly Died This A.M.

Had Taken an Active Part in Life in Sedalia

Mrs. Mary McRoberts Messerly, widow of the late Charles E. Messerly, died early this morning at her home in the Dean apartments. Death was due to heart trouble. Her two sons, Charles E. Jr., and J. McRoberts Messerly of Kansas City, had been at her bedside the past several days, as were also other relatives.

A M M A N, Trans-Jordan, April 29—(P)—Regent Abdul Ilah of Iraq said today his country's army has started moving from Baghdad toward Palestine and will pass through Trans-Jordan. "Plans are complete for rescuing Palestine," the regent said after talking with King Abdullah of Trans-Jordan.

The Arab Legion in Palestine sent a message to Abdullah saying Jewish forces in Gesher, on the west side of the Jordan river south of the Sea of Galilee, have surrendered to the regent after talking with King Abdullah of Trans-Jordan.

The American authorities said a Russian naval party came aboard, and demanded the U.S. flag be lowered. The American sergeant in charge refused to lower the flag. The Russians then threatened to shoot it down, but withdrew their demand and threat after discussion.

The Jews raised the white flag in order to bring in wounded and killed and afterwards capitulated," the Legion message said.

Jews. The Legion said the fight started Tuesday night when Jews entered the Trans-Jordan territory.

Egyptian Forces to South

Egyptian communications minister Dessouki Abaza Pasha said in Cairo large Egyptian army forces had been sent to the southern border of Palestine. Regent Abdul Ilah of Iraq said in Amman his country's army had started moving toward Palestine and would pass through Trans-Jordan.

The British rushed in a battalion of Irish Fusiliers to support their pledge not to permit the Jews to occupy Jaffa, the Arab port adjoining all-Jewish Tel Aviv. The reinforcements brought the British force available to about 3,000 men.

As far as was known, Irgun appeared determined to try and hold the Arab quarter. Throughout the night, Irgun forces dug into defense positions and brought up fresh troops.

Report Brings Optimism

British shells fell in the Manshieh quarter. Early damage and casualties were reported small.

The news of a cease fire for the old walled city of Jerusalem was received here with optimism. Neither the Jews nor the Arabs, however, had received instructions by early afternoon to cease fighting, as their spokesmen agreed before the United Nations.

Entertained Extensively

Mr. Messerly was a prosperous business man. For many years he operated a general merchandise store on the northwest corner of Second street and Osage avenue. The family home was the choice one of the row of Messerly apartments in the 200 block on West Third street from the alley running west to Kentucky avenue.

This home was the scene of many lovely affairs. Mrs. Messerly, upon her arrival in Sedalia, took her place among the social leaders. Her home furnishings were beautiful, her table linens and silver exquisite and her friends were always happy to receive an invitation to her home. There they met persons of note from distant cities, many from the state of Illinois, girlhood friends of Mrs. Messerly.

Retained Friendships

In later years when Mr. Messerly retired from business and they lived in smaller quarters Mrs. Messerly remained the same. She retained friendships made through the years, loved to visit her friends and to have them in her home. Her sense of humor was always with her adding zest to her conversation.

Her devotion to her church, in Sedalia, the Calvary Episcopal, was outstanding. She was a regular attendant at services and guild meetings until her health no longer permitted.

She was a member of Sorosis, the Helen G. Steele Music club and the Original Tuesday club.

Mrs. Messerly was the last of her family remaining in Sedalia. The memory of her and others of her generation who helped build the religious, civic and social life of Sedalia, will long remain.

Funeral Friday

Surviving are her sons, Charles E., Jr., and J. McRoberts Messerly. (Please turn to page 4 column 1)

RAPID CITY, S. D., April 28.—Western hospitality isn't the white man's invention. It's an old Sioux custom.

But the grandsons of Sitting Bull's warriors carry it so far they are eating one another out of tent and tepee.

The old Sioux rule is: "Share whatever you have evenly with your brother." And everybody in the tribe is a brother.

It wasn't a bad rule in the old days when tribesmen hunted the buffalo together and divided the kill. But the principle doesn't work out so well since the white man came and changed the pattern of their roaming life.

The Sioux tribesmen, gaining in numbers after a long decline, have overflowed their reservations—the thin pastures, left them by their conquerors. They are leaving by the hundreds to find work in the white man's cities to earn food.

Here's the Hitch:
As soon as one Sioux finds a job all the others in the neighborhood move in to share his good fortune. They eat him down to their level, and then the whole bunch moves on to the next Sioux with a soul.

"Nobody cares who pays," said Mrs. Ellen Donovan, county nurse, "they just eat until the food is gone. They would share it with anybody—even with us. They live altogether for today, and have no care for tomorrow."

Mrs. Donovan and Dr. Ben Sedelaek, superintendent of the Sioux sanatorium, have a strong sympathy for the Indians who have had to leave their own reservations in order to stay alive.

Tuberculosis Rate High
But they worry over health conditions among 2,500 Indians who have set up camps along Rapid Creek, which threads this trade center for the Black Hills area. The tuberculosis rate is high.

Last winter every child in the Indian camp had pneumonia.

"They don't complain," said Dr. Sedelaek. "They don't even ask for a doctor until the sick Indian is so far gone we often can't do anything for him."

The Sioux left the warpath only 50 years ago. Their camps here are a sorry compromise between their old nomadic life and modern sanitation. There is no such thing as indoor sanitation. And beef entrails hang drying from tree limbs.

The children are dirty. The camp areas are living dump heaps. Their ancestors were a clean and sanitary people. When their camping site became fouled, they moved on. The Sioux of today can't do that. And if he could move on he probably would not. He likes to stay where he can see the bright lights and gawk at the tourists.

A Happy People

An' of course, he has to live close to the places where he can sell his labor—sawmills, packing plants, construction jobs.

For all their poverty, they are a happy people who stoically conceal their pain—Sioux women commonly don't even call in a midwife in childbirth. At one camp I asked one wrinkled old crone why she laughed so much.

"Some day I'll be dead and won't be here," she replied through an interpreter. "So while I am I like to have fun."

Most Sioux have no racial prejudice toward the white man and feel no resentment toward him for taking their rich homeland. But they don't like at least one of his restrictions. Federal law prohibits the sale of liquor to Indians. In practice this works out

Dive With Plane To Avert Disaster

CLEVELAND, April 29—(P)—The pilot of an American Airlines plane he put his DC-6 plane into a 3,000-foot dive to blow out flames streaming from a burning engine and save 48 passengers and a crew of four from possible disaster on Wednesday as the plane passed over Toledo at 21,000 feet.

Air Capt. E. S. Swanson, the pilot whose quick action saved the plane, flew it on to Cleveland airport on the remaining three engines.

All available fire apparatus at the airport raced down the field in the wake of the landing plane and poured 200 pounds of carbon dioxide fire extinguisher on the scorched engine and damaged right wing as the transport stopped.

A ladder was raised immediately to the door of the cabin, but the passengers remained inside for the taxiing trip to the hanger after a quick survey showed all danger of fire had been eliminated.

A broken propeller blade in the supercharger of the No. 3 engine caused the fire when it flew off its hub, Capt. Swanson reported. He said the blade ripped through the engine housing, allowing oil to come in contact with the exhaust collector ring.

WASHINGTON, April 29—(P)—H. Emmett Slusher, Lexington, president of the Missouri Farm Bureau Federation, and three Missouri Chamber of Commerce officials called Wednesday on President Truman.

With Slusher were Albert F. Hillix, president of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce; George W. Catts, executive director, and A. M. Keller, representing the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce. The four here attending a meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce, declined to discuss their conversation with Mr. Truman.

The Daily Washington Merry-go-Round

by Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON, April 29—It looks as if fate was finally catching up with the real estate lobby. One of its most active spokesmen has been Congressman Charles Fletcher, San Diego Republican, who, though a freshman, was strategically placed on the house banking and currency committee by the lobby's master wire puller Morton Bodfish.

Bodfish has now been indicted by the justice department, and Fletcher is now under investigation by the Home Loan Board for some interesting operations in San Diego.

The board has sent its ace investigator, A. C. Newell, to California to probe the shaky finances of the Federal Savings and Loan Association which Fletcher heads. Thanks to the congressman and his father, the association has got in up to its neck in a real estate deal which may lose a lot of other people's money.

Fletcher founded the Federal Savings and Loan Association of San Diego and is still its president. Furthermore he draws a salary of $10,000, even while he is supposed to be devoting his full time to congress.

Of course, as a congressman, Fletcher introduced the bill to abolish rent control, has voted consistently against housing reforms and is a member of the joint committee on housing where he has done his best to sabotage the Taft-Ellender-Wagner housing bill. So, all in all, he hasn't done so badly by the housing lobby.

"Fletcher Park"

But in San Diego, Fletcher has not done so well by the people who invested in his federal savings and loan association. First, Fletcher's father sold a tract of land to a San Diego real estate operator named Larry H. Imig, for around $30,000. Then young Fletcher turned around and loaned them the money which he, Imig, paid Fletcher's father for the land.

Following this, Imig erected a housing development which he named "Fletcher Park" in honor of the two gentlemen who sold him the land and loaned him other people's money to pay for it. Then Imig built another development, which he named for himself "Imig Park," plus a swank hotel with swimming pool and night club which he named "Imig Park Manor."

Meanwhile, Imig kept borrowing money from Fletcher's Federal Savings and Loan Association, until his debt now runs to around $1,250,000—or about one-half the total assets of the association. If this were Fletcher's money, it would be one thing. But what worries the Home Loan Board in Washington is that the U. S. government has insured the San Diego Federal Savings and Loan Association and Uncle Sam may have to bail Fletcher out. That's why investigator Newell was sent to California.

Congressman Fletcher started in the savings and loan business back in 1934 on only $9,500. He hit it just at the right time, shortly before the war boom. By the peak of the boom, his association's total capital was swollen to nearly $3,000,000—of which about half is tied up with one real estate speculator.

Meanwhile, Congressman Fletcher blithely continues to vote against public housing. Obviously, if he can lend money to private speculators with a government guarantee to bail him out, he isn't terribly interested in the low-cost public housing provided for in the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill. So, all in all, he hasn't done so badly by the housing lobby.

Now that the Italian elections are over, some of the backstage developments can be told.

One factor which influenced Italian voters was the state department's offer to return Trieste to Italy—an offer which the Russians eventually turned down.

What wasn't known was that Tito had been planning to make exactly the same offer himself on behalf of Russia. But U. S. intelligence services picked up this fact, and we beat Tito to it. This was some of the fastest footwork the state department has put across in some time.

Another factor was Ambassador Dunn's insistence that the American fleet get out of Italian waters. Some of the military men around the White House didn't like this advice, thought the fleet should remain. But Dunn argued that its presence gave political ammunition to the Communists.

He was right. The fleet was withdrawn and the Communists had to pipe down.

One thing which nearly upset the applecart was the amendment by Congressman O'Konski of Wisconsin making Marshall plan money available to Spain. Until this was reversed in the senate, it had a bad backfire in Italy.

Note 1—When this writer was in Italy last winter, he traveled with Ambassador Dunn and Vice Premier Pacciardi to Naples to welcome the Friend Ship. Perhaps these were the two most incongruous people in Italy to be thrown together; for, during the Spanish civil war, Dunn was lined up on the side of Franco, while Col. Pacciardi commanded the Italian anti-Fascist troops in Spain fighting against Franco. Both, however, have now been working together in the belief that extremists of either the Right or Left are enemies of Italian democracy.

Note 2—President Truman has in mind a promotion for Ambassador Dunn. While he deserves one, his services are too important in Italy.

Merry-Go-Round

Some fast footwork is going on inside the state department regarding the Marshall plan. The plan has quietly eliminated $600,000,000 worth of machinery to Europe. Instead, $600,000,000 of food and grains have been added. What Europe needs most is machinery to build up its own industry. . . . Congratulations to colonial airlines for completing 18 years of operation without a single fatal accident. It has flown a total of 192 million miles. . . . New general counsel of the CIO is able Arthur Goldberg. . . . The White House is unhappy over the public relations setup of the Democratic national committee, may clean out most of party headquarters. . . . However, it's hard to do a good public relations job when there's not too much to publicize.

Horse Trading With Argentina

One of the baldest pieces of international horse trading on record was concluded at Bogota when the U. S. delegation helped Argentina keep the "rights of men" resolution out of the inter-American pact, in return for the latter's agreement to go along with a vaguely worded "anti-subversive" declaration.

Ever since the Chapultepec conference in 1945, the Pan American union's juridical division, following out resolutions adopted at that meeting, had been preparing two vitally important measures for consideration at Bogota. One covered the "rights and duties of states," the other the "rights of man"—that is, the individual citizen's rights to civil liberty and personal freedom.

The governments of all the American republics were consulted on this matter and invited to submit proposed drafts of both resolutions. Fourteen responded, and from them a program was carefully worked out.

The totalitarian regime of Juan D. Peron in Argentina offered no drafts on either subject. But Argentine representatives sat on several advance committees which studied them and drew up the final proposals. At Bogota, however, Peron's men began to object.

During the first days of the conference—before the assassination of Gaitan and its bloody sequel—the Argentine objections were not specific. Argentine foreign minister Bramuglia and his aides merely talked in general terms about "nonintervention" and "infringements on national sovereignty." This is the classic Argentine line when it comes to objection.

But when deliberations were resumed after the rioting, the Argentines got more vigorous. Argentina, Bramuglia let it be known, was flatly opposed to both the "rights of man" resolution and safeguarding the "rights of states." Significantly, he also indicated that his country could not support any anti-Communist resolution which would "compromise traditional Argentine friendship with all duly constituted governments throughout the world."

Chile's Criticism of Russia

An overwhelming majority of the delegations, following the U. S. and Chile's lead, favored such a declaration criticizing Russian Communism. But, like the question of breaking relations with the Axis in 1942, unanimity was needed to make it effective. And once again Argentina was the stumbling block. She refused to criticize the Axis in 1942 and now she refused to criticize Russia in 1948.

This was when the amazing horse trade began to be worked out. On April 16, assistant secretary of State Norman Armour had a long talk with Foreign Minister Bramuglia. The upshot was an accord between the two governments to support only the "rights and duties of states" proposal for inclusion in the pact itself, leaving the "rights of man" clause to be tacked on as a lame, ineffectual supplementary declaration.

In return, Argentina agreed to vote for a cautiously phrased resolution condemning "all subversive action against the collective security of the western hemisphere or the national integrity of individual American states." Communism was not mentioned at all.

The United States had backed the "rights of man" proposal all the way, up until this compromise. It was supposed to be the cornerstone of a New Deal for all people of all the Americas. It was also hoped that the United Nations would follow with a similar measure.

But guaranteeing the rights of the individual doesn't agree with Gen. Peron's ideas for running his country. And getting Peron's approval for a meaningless statement on undefined "subversive activities" was considered more important. So, once more, we bargained away our democratic principles in order to keep the "good will" of the glib Gauchito of the Pampas.

Winding up P-A Conference

BOGOTA, Colombia, April 29.—(P)—The way is clear for winding up the Pan American conference tomorrow. The last dispute was settled last night with agreement on a plan to pay for foreign property expropriated by American governments, in line with a United States proposal.

This dispute turned on a clause of an economic treaty being drawn up at the ninth international conference of American states.

The United States wanted this clause to say that any one of the 21 republics expropriating foreign property should compensate the owners in "prompt, adequate and effective form."

Mexico said the clause either should be stricken out altogether or should be amended with the additional phrase, "in accordance with the constitutions of each country." She held the clause as it stood violated the Mexican constitution.

But the committee drafting the treaty accepted the U. S. proposal and adopted the compensation clause last night without amendment.

Fourteen countries voted in favor of this. Five were against it—Mexico, Guatemala, Venezuela, Ecuador and Panama. Two were absent—Paraguay and Costa Rica.

Things Are Looking up For Braves

Catcher Ray Mueller Of Cincy Reds Fractures an Ankle

By Jack Hand
Associated Press Sports Writer

Things are looking up for Billy Southworth and his Boston Braves after a week of disaster. Excellent pitching jobs by Warren Spahn, Red Barrett and Bill Voiselle have lifted the would-be contenders from the cellar gloom.

Spahn's first win of the season yesterday marked the return to normalcy of Manager Southworth's gang. For Spahn and Johnny Sain, as 20-game winners last year, were expected to lead the Braves toward the 1948 flag. Spahn missed his first time out and Sain failed twice.

Voiselle's three-hit shutout of Brooklyn yanked the Braves off the floor Monday. Barrett followed with a six-hitter Tuesday. Then came Spahn's two-hit gem against the Phillies.

In three games this staff yielded only 11 hits and two runs. Spahn's job was a real sparkler. He faced only 28 Phillips in his 7-0 victory, walked none and fanned four.

Johnny Vander Meer made it a left-handed day in the National by stopping Chicago with six hits while his Cincinnati mates clubbed Johnny Schmitz and Don Carlson for 12 hits.

The Reds' southpaw reversed the trend of his first outing when he walked 12 men. Yesterday he passed only two assuring himself of win No. 1 by an 8-1 score.

There was bad news for Cincy, too. Catcher Ray Mueller fractured his right ankle sliding into home. He will be out for 60 days.

The New York at Brooklyn game was rained out but both clubs provided disturbing news. From the Giants came word that Catcher Walker Cooper, who has hit four homers, has a chip fracture on his left knee. He was injured April 21 but caught four of the last five games. He will be out several days.

Pitcher Harry Taylor of the Dodgers learned he may have to undergo an appendicitis operation.

Cold weather postponed the scheduled night game between St. Louis and Pittsburgh in the National. In the American Association at New York, Boston at Philadelphia and Cleveland at Chicago were called off because of cold, rain or wet grounds.

Detroit took the sole American league game, 9-4, over St. Louis with a 15-hit assault on four Brownie pitchers.

THE STORY: Patience Mend goes to London this time next week to attend dressmaking school. The only freedom allowed her by the two old-fashioned aunts who have brought her up and with whom she lives in the country. On the committee train she meets Paul Taylor, who lives in a neighboring village and who finds himself attracted to the prim young girl. The aunts never suspected knowing her aunts would disapprove. Paul tells her he loves her. Patience's dream of happiness is shattered when the aunts discover her perfidy, force her to promise not to see Paul again.

SHE went back into the house when at last her tears had stopped and upstairs to her own room. She sat down at the little writing table in the window and found note paper and envelopes. It was the first love letter she'd ever written. She supposed it would almost certainly be the last.

She sat nibbling the end of her pen. She made several false starts and then in the end the letter she wrote came quite easily. As easily—more easily in fact for then she'd been shy—as if she'd been talking to him. She told him that her aunts had found out about them. That her Aunt Helen had forbidden her to see him or speak to him again. "Please, Paul darling, don't try to make me break the promise I had to give her. Because it won't make any difference. Nothing you can say would make me go back on it. Nothing you can do. So this is the end. Except to thank you for all the happiness you've given me. Knowing you has been the liveliest thing that has ever happened to me..."

She read the letter through and then put it in an envelope and sealed it. She posted it the next morning. It was a Saturday. This afternoon he'd be waiting for her train to come into Stortford station hoping that possibly she'd be on it.

She was helping Aunt Alice with the church brasses when the clock struck three, the time she would have been arriving. A tear fell onto the heavy vase. And then another.

"Patience dear, try not to take it too much to heart."

"I'm all right, Aunt Alice. At least I will be," she said, but her voice was all choked up.

She polished vigorously away at the vase to hide her unhappiness.

VIII
THE weekend routine went as usual. Flowers for the church. The morning service. Patience and her aunts were regular churchgoers. Chatter with the various people they knew as they came out. No one at all exciting. One young and gay. A dull life for a girl of 20, thought Miss Alice, as they walked home to the roast beef that was awaiting them. And then cheered herself by remembering that after all the dear child went three times a week to London.

Patience was almost dreading the next morning. It came and she thought: "This evening I'll see him." Only she must take no notice of him. She'd given Aunt Helen her promise. She'd written to him and told him what to expect.

She couldn't concentrate on her work at the academy. The cutting-out class which usually interested her so much failed to hold her attention. Madame Girard, who was taking her, reproved her sharply.

At last it was over. Everything put away. The girls crowding into the cloakroom. Patience looked at herself in the mirror and wondered if she were really the same girl who'd looked in this same mirror last Friday. Then she'd been so happy. In so short a while she'd been going to see him. Well, in so short a while now possibly she'd see him. Only she didn't want to. It would be far easier

If he were not there on the train. If he'd decided to travel down on another one. . . .

But he was waiting at the barrier. His heart shook at sight of him, and her knees turned to jelly. He strode towards her and took her arm in a firm grip and said angrily: "What is all this nonsense? That ridiculous letter I received from you this morning?"

"It's not nonsense, Paul. I meant every word of it."

"I don't believe it."

It was impossible to argue with him there on the platform with people hurrying and scurrying all around them. They found seats in a crowded carriage, and as soon as the train started went out into the corridor. Here at least they were more or less alone. Paul looked down at her and now the anger was fading from his eyes.

"Patience darling, they can't do this thing to you."

Patience swallowed hard. Her hands gripped the brass rail running along the window.

"The trouble is they can."

He looked at her for a long moment. "You're not really going to let them get away with it?"

"How can I help it?"

"Stand up to them. Tell them to go to blazes—"

"Oh, Paul, Paul, if you knew where you'd understand that what you're suggesting is quite impossible."

"I understand one thing," he flung at her bitterly; "I don't matter to you the way you matter to me."

She wrung her hands.

"Paul, that's so untrue. You matter to me more than anyone else in the world. I never dreamed I could feel this way about anybody. I—" she broke off in confusion. It was the first time she'd said anything like this to him: "That's so easy to say."

"I mean it."

It seems as though you're always buying something for baby. If it isn't food it's baby powder—or any of a number of other things you need to keep baby healthy, happy, and hefty. And that's why it's so important to buy at McFarland's. Not only do we have full lines of the very products your doctor recommends, but everything is priced to bring down the cost of bringing up baby.

When the U. S. government writes a cookbook, that's news all by itself. When the first printing of that book is a million free copies, you can be sure there's more stirring than just what's in the recipes themselves.

"Money-Saving Main Dishes" is the spearhead of the big new effort for national food conservation. The European situation has speeded up the government's drive to keep America strong. This 48-page book, 6x9 inches, contains 150 tested recipes that save food, yet provide essential protein. Where the Luckman committee failed in the drive for food conservation by appealing to patriotism, this book is expected to succeed by appealing to the pocketbook.

Mix together the threat of Communism, the European Recovery Program, with its drain on our wheat supplies, the expected meat shortage this fall and the

Basket Dinner On Last Day At South Side

The South Side school, ten miles south of Sedalia, taught by Mrs. Margaret Stelljes, closed its 1947-48 term April 23 with a basket dinner furnished by the school mothers. The repast was in the school basement. The tables were beautifully decorated with flowers, donated by the mothers.

The welcome song was given by Jerome Mahnken.

The program included: Recitation, "I Wonder," by Susie Gardner; song, "Four Leaf Clover," by the school; recitation, "Teacher's Pet," by Patrick Mahnken; song, "Walking to School in the Rain," by Patrick, Patricia, Jerome Mahnken; reading, "Little Calf Path," by Cornelie Salmon of the Anderson school; song, "Best Things in Life Are Free," by the school; playlet, "Such a Clever Hobo," by Patrick Mahnken, Helen Rehmer, Patricia Mahnken; recitation, "Little Boy Blue," by Jerome Mahnken; recitation, "Casey at the Bat," by Kippy Salmon; recitation, "Picnic Pleasure," by Patricia Mahnken; play, "Unappreciated Generosity," by Helen Rehmer, Vira Sue Gardner, Shirley Irwin, Mary Gardner, Glenn McFarrick, Claude Higbee; reading, "Junior Entertainers," by Mary Gardner; geography class of "Slap Happy School" and Missouri History class of South Side school; poem, "Missouri," by Luther Mahnken; "Song of Missouri," by the school.

Through the Capitol

Concluding studies for the term the students went to Jefferson City and through the capitol on April 26. Transportation was donated by Miss Elmer Gardner.

Awards Made

Awards were given to the following students: Perfect spelling, Mary Gardner; perfect attendance, Patricia and Patrick Mahnken, Helen Rehmer, Mary Gardner; learning the most poetry, Mary Gardner, Luther Wesley Mahnken; pencils were awarded the rising cost of food and you get the flavor of this book's national purpose. (A one-cent post card sent to "Food Conservation," Washington, 25, D. C., with only your name and address on it, will get you the book.)

It was prepared by the Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics, Department of Agriculture. Dr. Hazel K. Stiebeling, chief of that bureau and America's No. 1 housekeeper, leads the task force. Dr. Day Monroe, nutritionist of the Office for Food and Feed Conservation, was a top assistant in the research for more protein for less money. So were home economists from colleges and industries throughout the country.

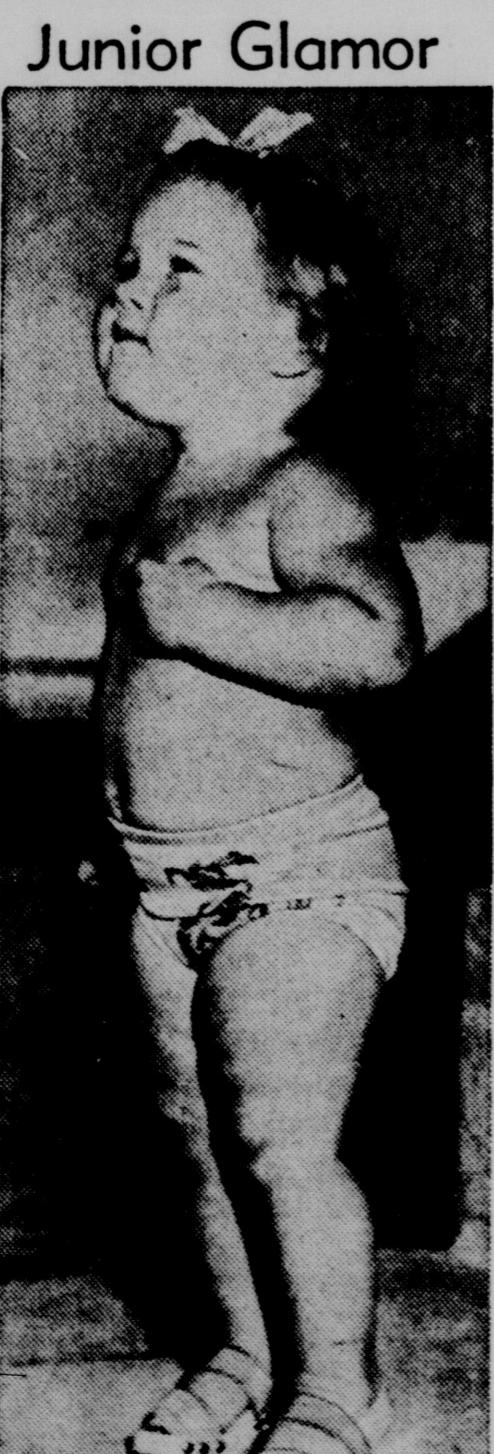

The book gives every reader the know-how of protein management. Each of the main dishes provides four generous servings and supplies two ounces of protein, that being one-sixth of the amount needed a day for four persons. The remainder of the three ounces of protein each man, woman and child must have every day for building and repairing students by the Rural Bible Crusade for having learned Bible verses all year; one eighth grade diploma was presented to the only eighth grade student, Luther Wesley Mahnken.

A letter of appreciation was presented to the teacher for her good work during the last two years by the school board.

Mrs. Opal Williams of Ionia, Mo., has been employed for next year.

Letter From Germany Shows Appreciation for Gifts Sent

Frank Witte, 82 years of age, who resides at the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. Coester, 619 West Twenty-third street, received the following letter from Germany (Russian Zone), April 21, written in English from his niece's husband. The writer of the letter was for 37 years a German school teacher and is now studying the English language. (Possessions and only son lost in war).

"Biesenthal, Near Berlin,
March 31, 1948

"Dear Walter, Nola and Uncle Frank,

"I can use your fine writing paper for this letter and send you our best thanks after arrival of packages No. 1 and 2. Eli wrote about the arrival and we hope you have received that letter. We are very glad and owe you much. We only are sorry that we cannot render you some goodness at present. However we hope the situation will be better in future and then we would be able to send good things to you.

Contents Complete

"Elli wrote to you that the two packages have been in order and contents complete. All that you had put in so kindly and with so much pains is in our hands now and we had happy Easter with a splendid dinner and a wonderful cake. Our thoughts and feelings have been in gratitude for you in Sedalia, hoping you will have a happy Easter.

"Elli is learning English now too and sent you her first letter in this language. Learning English she will read your letters, dear Nola, and answer in English. It is her belief that you cannot understand correctly our letters written in German. My letters in English are not always to her satisfaction. In consequence we are studying English in the evening. My old girl is a good pupil and probably her next letter will be better than the first one."

"The two packages came in time for Easter—wonderful indeed! Yesterday in the evening I read the Sedalia Democrat and translated the chosen parts into German for Elli. This newspaper is very interesting for us. Please do the favor of sending these newspapers once more. Your magazines are beautiful, but I prefer the newspapers in order to learning English and understand life in the U.S.A.

"Ellis satisfaction is the soap. A lady has always want of good soap and such a soap is seldom in Germany nowadays. Washing with bad soap, what do you think of it?

"Also many thanks for the small dictionary. Translating English into German I can use it, but I can not translate German into English with this small book. In different cases, however, it is useful and thank you very much. We are waiting the large dictionary you forwarded February 21. I shall be the happiest man in Germany when I am in receipt of this book. Can you understand me?

"The fine scarfs we shall use next winter. It is a good woolen scarf for me and the other of blue mixed color, a fine one for Elli. We have divided the scarfs. Mine is good for working out doors in cold winter time. I am sure. We are very obliged to you for these good things.

"And the foods! These many good things. What can I do to show you how we eat well now. All that you have written in your list makes our meals in these days. We eat daily a fine dinner or supper. Everything enclosed in the packages arrived safely. Easter we had not meat (rationed) and very seldom on our table, but we had rice with sugar and cinnamon and an egg pan cake for our children. At supper we had Lipton's Noodle soup (a very good food) and a pudding. Eli had baked two good cakes with the raisins and sugar. Today we will drink cocoa sweetened but without milk. Poor men do not miss the milk, we are satisfied and very happy having so many good meals.

Package No. 3 Arrives

"I must finish this letter in this moment though I would write to you so many things. Why? Why? package No. 3 is arrived in Berlin! The postman brings us the telegram sent from Mr. Schauer at this moment.

"I finish with thousand thanks and best regards to you all. Eli is hastening for traveling early in the morning to Berlin. The day after tomorrow I will write again.

Color One of Main Points In Fight Over Oleo

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON, April 29—(P)—This is an ABC on the fight in Congress over margarine and butter.

The average price of those two bread spreads is: margarine, 42 cents a pound; butter, 94 cents a pound.

The higher butter prices go or stay, the more customers there are for the cheaper-priced margarine. Still, far more butter is sold.

Last year the sale was: Margarine, 745,000,000 pounds; butter, 1,700,000,000. Those figures are from the National Association of Margarine Manufacturers.

Butter is made of animal fats—cream from cows. This is the make-up of margarine: 15 per cent skinned milk; 5 per cent salt and seasoning; 80 per cent vegetable fats—oil from soybeans, cottonseeds, peanuts.

In Two Forms

Margarine is sold on the market in two forms: Already colored yellow like butter; or plain white, with coloring attached for the housewife to mix to get the butter-yellow color.

About 80 per cent of all margarine eaten is the kind bought uncolored. The government tax on that is less than on the kind already colored yellow.

If you'd been raised from babyhood on white-colored butter, you'd probably grow up liking it that way.

But you've been raised on yellow butter. So your preference is formed. You want a yellow spread on your bread.

And that color—yellow—is one of the main points in the fight between butter-makers and margarine-makers.

Argue About Color

The butter-makers don't want to see yellow margarine sold on the market, if they can help it. They argue:

Unless yellow-colored margarine is labeled margarine, you, the housewife, can be fooled into thinking you're getting butter.

The other side of that argument is:

If you began buying yellow-colored margarine and found not much difference between it and butter, you'd probably buy one as readily as the other.

And—the more margarine was sold, the more the butter-makers would suffer in the long run.

So it's been to the interest of the butter-makers—the manufacturers and the dairy farmers with the cream-giving cows—to see that margarine is sold under handicaps.

Sold Under Handicaps

And for years it's been sold under big handicaps that didn't apply to its competitor, butter.

And for years the margarine-makers—the manufacturers and the growers of those vegetables that go into margarine, like soybeans, cotton, peanuts—have been trying to get the handicaps removed.

So it's been one group of manufacturers and farmers against another. Until now the butter boys have been winning. Here are some of the handicaps on margarine:

Margarine manufacturers must pay a yearly federal license fee (tax) of $800, whether the margarine is colored or uncolored.

Wholesalers must pay a yearly federal fee of $480 if they handle colored margarine, $200 if it's uncolored.

Must Pay Federal Fee

Retailers—neighborhood grocers—must pay a yearly federal fee of $48 to sell colored margarine, $8 to sell the uncolored kind.

Then there's a federal tax of one-quarter of a cent a pound on uncolored margarine and 10 cents on the colored kind.

These taxes are more of a nuisance to the margarine people than they are a revenue-producer for the government. The government income from those federal fees and taxes was about $7,000,000 last year.

Since about 745,000,000 pounds of margarine were sold last year, the government's income was less than one cent a pound.

The U. S. Treasury is on record as not caring whether all the margarine taxes are wiped out.

Some States Have Own Laws

The taxes first were put on to prevent the fraudulent sale of margarine.

The wiping out of all federal fees and taxes would still leave margarine under big handicaps in many states which have their own fees and taxes. About 22 states won't let colored margarine be sold at all.

The House was expected to wipe out all or some of the federal fees and taxes. This won't mean anything unless the Senate does the same thing.

Oak Grove 4-H Club Meeting

NEW YORK, April 29—(P)—Marshall Field III announced Wednesday sale of controlling interest in the newspaper PM to Bartley Crum, attorney, and Joseph Barnes, foreign editor of the New York Herald Tribune.

Field said he would retain a minority interest.

The arrangements were endorsed by the PM unit of the New York Newspaper Guild (CIO).

The Battle of Margarine is Nearing End

Bill Now Before Congress to Wipe Out Federal Taxes

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON, April 28—(P)—The battle of the fats—butter and margarine—is coming to a head.

Butter is made of animal fats—cream from cows. Margarine is made of vegetable fats—oil from soy beans, cottonseed, peanuts.

For years the dairy farmers and the butter-makers have had an advantage over the margarine-makers and the growers of vegetable fats.

How? By blocking any attempt in congress to knock off the special federal taxes and fees for making or selling margarine.

Congress Background

Above all they've fought against letting margarine be sold in yellow color-like butter—without some special tax or label.

Some of the details in this fight will be given this week, but here is a little congress background.

About 8 bills were introduced in the house this year to wipe out the margarine fees or taxes.

In March the house agriculture committee for days held hearings on these bills, listening to a stream of witnesses.

Most of the witnesses were on the side of margarine. They included spokesmen for retail grocers, educators, hospitals, a veterans group, labor organizations, college women and consumers.

Vote to Sit on Bill

But when the hearings were all over, the members of the committee voted—16 to 10—to sit on the bill. Which meant the full house would not get a chance to vote on that.

Then some margarine-minded congressmen got up a petition in the house to drag the bills away from the committee.

To make such a petition work, they needed the signatures of 218 congressmen, or just more than one-half of the 435 members. Finally they got the 218. That was the signal for the full house to act.

So Monday the full house voted—235 to 121—to force at least one of the bills out of the committee to the floor where the whole house could debate and vote on it.

This bill would wipe out all federal taxes and fees on margarine.

After a couple of days of argument the house will vote. This is expected this week. The house is almost sure to pass it, although some changes may be made in the bill.

Truman For Bill

All this will mean nothing at all unless the senate later on also votes for such a bill and President Truman signs it into law.

At least one representative of Mr. Truman has told congress he's for such a bill. But—

It's not certain the senate will go along with the house or even consider the bill this year. If it doesn't that ends it. And the taxes and fees will stay on margarine unchanged.

But even if both houses act and such a bill becomes law, margarine will still be at a disadvantage in many places.

Many states have special taxes of their own on margarine—and a new federal law would not change them—and 22 states won't let colored margarine be sold at all.

LaMonte Club Has Luncheon

The LaMonte Friendship club held their annual luncheon at the home of Mrs. Arthur Perkins, Thursday, April 22. The house was decorated with bouquets of flowers of various hues. Each table seated four members and the covers were different shades of crepe paper with napkins to match. The place cards were pretty and each member received a corsage. In the center of each table was a bouquet.

The luncheon menu consisted of cream chicken, mashed potatoes and gravy, baked corn, peas, hot rolls and butter, lime and carrot salad, ice cream, macaroons and coffee.

The president, Mrs. C. E. Carroll, presided at the business meeting. Mrs. Arthur Perkins gave the inspirational. The minutes were read and approved by the secretary, Mrs. P. S. Craig. Each member represented a character in the funny paper. Each chairman of each division gave her yearly report. The president, Mrs. C. E. Carroll, appointed new chairmen for each department for the ensuing year. Seventeen members answered roll call. Mrs. Charles Wolf of Clinton was a guest.

To make cream of spinach soup quickly put a pound of spinach that has been cooked through a sieve food mill; combine it with three cups of thin white sauce, reheat and season well. If there is any liquid left after cooking the spinach, it may be used as part of the milk in the white sauce.

A combination of lard and butter or fortified margarine makes an exceptionally flaky and flavorful pastry.

To make Chocolate Cream Cheese Frosting melt one square (one ounce) of unsweetened chocolate in a small bowl over hot water. Remove and let the bowl cool. Stir in a few tablespoons of milk, half a package of cream cheese and about a cup of confectioners' sugar; beat until entirely smooth. If the frosting is not as thick as desired a little more sugar may be mixed in.

Coffee cakes that have sugar and cinnamon toppings should be cut in the pan in which they are baked; in this way the topping will crumble less.

Soviet Papers Declare There Will Be No War Now

By J. M. Roberts, Jr.
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Soviet-controlled newspapers in Moscow and Berlin are predicting that there will be no war now.

"This should not engender feelings of complacency among the armed forces," adds the Soviet army paper Red Star.

"There will be a political reckoning," said the fifth column editors in Berlin.

Which, combined, says Russia, will continue to back political pressures with military power to promote her campaign of conquest through world revolution.

This is something for America to bear in mind as signs appear tween foreign and domestic affairs.

The introduction to an Associated Press story from Washington recently said "the nation's 'stop Russia' program kept getting involved today in almost everything Congress discussed."

Money For Projects

Money for education, for dams, for agricultural development; reductions in taxes; social programs. Everything has to be considered in its relation to our expenditures for defense and world security.

Oil and iron reserves, and destruction of the land through intensified farm production for export, become increasingly important problems.

Social pressures are provoked. There is increasing schism between the elements of left and right here at home. Minorities seek to use the need for their cooperation in the national program as a lever to obtain special objectives.

Just as the United States is forced to insure itself against even the outside chances of war, so must the great cities devote their attention to safety programs. Industry must devote part of its energy to development of defenses against attack.

In other words, the whole community is forced into wasteful activity and disunity by threats against which it cannot afford not to prepare, yet which may prove to be nothing but threats.

This makes military preparedness only one half of the required program, at home as well as in Europe. Without complementary attention to the economic and social structure, the ladder to peace will have only one leg to stand on.

House Votes Federal Taxes Repeal On Oleo

Vote 260 To 106

After Debate On
Shape Of Package

By Arthur Edson
WASHINGTON, April 29—(P)—The House Wednesday voted to repeal all federal margarine taxes—after squabbling for three hours over what shape a package of oleo should take.

The vote was 260 to 106.

Following is the House roll call by Missouri representatives to repeal federal taxes on oleomargarine:

For:
Republicans—Bakewell, Reeves.
Against:
Democrats—Arnold, Short.

The bill, which would repeal laws that have been on the books for 62 years, now goes to the Senate.

Forbid Color In Many States

But even if the Senate and President Truman approve the bill, many a housewife still won't be able to buy her margarine already colored.

It's against the law to sell colored oleo in these states:

California, Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Illinois, Iowa, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, New Hampshire, New York, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Vermont, Washington, Wisconsin, and Wyoming.

Some other states impose special licenses or taxes on oleo.

The federal taxes which the bill passed today would appear at:

10 cents a pound on colored oleo; ¼ cent a pound on uncolored; $600 a year tax on manufacturers; $480 on wholesalers of colored oleo; $200 on wholesalers of the uncolored product; $48 on retailers of colored oleo; $6 on retailers of uncolored.

Amendment after amendment was brought up today by congressmen from dairy states. But each time they were beaten.

Clear Way To Vote

The chief argument came over this issue:

Shoul' oleomargarine makers be forced to put their product in triangular or circular packs to keep it from being confused with butter?

The final answer was no. Triangular oleo was beaten 114 to 83. Round oleo went down, 119 to 87.

Then the House battled down, 129 to 72, a proposal by Rep. August H. Andersen (R-Minn.) to prohibit altogether the sale of colored oleo.

This cleared the way for the vote on the repeal measure itself.

On the final rollcall, the repeal forces mustered 118 Republican votes, 140 Democratic and 2 American Laborites. Voting against were 92 Republicans and 14 Democrats.

This will show you how divided party lines were:

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) has said he favors repeal of Oleo taxes. Yet his presidential campaign manager, Rep. Clarence Brown (R-Ohio) voted no today.

On the Senate side, repeat backers were already preparing for a hard campaign to get quick action. Senator Olin D. Johnston (D-SC) told the Senate he is confident that a majority of senators favor repeal. He urged that the Senate finance committee take early action in order to permit a Senate vote.

Powell Resigns, Truman Named

WASHINGTON, April 29—(P)—President Truman's brother, J. V. Truman, Wednesday was appointed the federal housing administration's district director for western Missouri.

His salary will be $7,500 a year.

The appointment was announced by Franklin D. Richards, FHA commissioner. Vivian Truman will succeed David H. Powell, who resigned.

Powell's appointment as a manager of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's Kansas City loan agency was announced yesterday.

Richards said in announcing

Truman's appointment:

"The new Kansas City director has had long experience with the FHA, having started as filed representative in October, 1935, shortly after FHA began operating. He has held various posts in Kansas City and because of his experience was made assistant to the director in September, 1936."

The RFC's announcement of Powell's appointment said he succeeds Albert L. Strong, who resigned last December as manager of its Kansas City loan agency.

A native of Sedalia, Mo., Powell became a member of the St. Louis loan agency staff in 1933 and in 1935 was made assistant manager of the Kansas City loan agency, a post he resigned in July 1936.

Orchestra Music For Assembly

The regular junior high school assembly was held at the Smith Cotton high school Wednesday morning, at 9:00 o'clock.

It was presented by the junior high school orchestra, conducted by J. T. Alexander, director of music at Smith Cotton.

This was the first time that this group had been presented at the school. The orchestra is entirely made up of junior high students.

Fined For Careless Driving

Elsworth Lester Collins, appeared before Magistrate W. M. Ilgenfritz, Wednesday, and pleaded guilty to a charge of careless driving, and was fined $5 and costs.

He was arrested by the state highway patrol, while driving a 1936 Chevrolet coach on the left side of a public highway.
